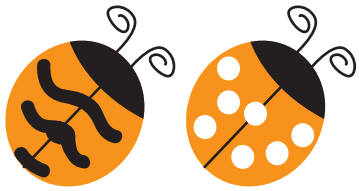
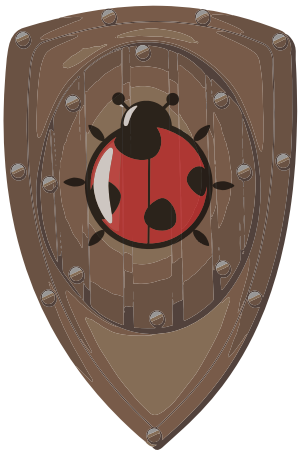
Facts about Ladybugs

They come in many colors, most commonly red, orange, yellow or scarlet with black dots on them.

Most known ladybug is the red one with 7 spots however other species can have different numbers of spots.



Some ladybugs have white spots and some even have stripes.

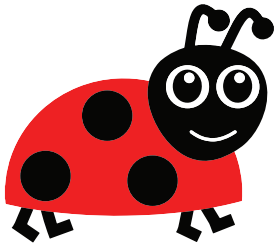


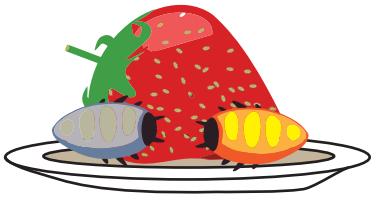
Their color protects them from the predators.

They also play dead to protect themselves from predators.

When startled they also release a foul smelling liquid from their knees.

They live from 2 to 3 years.





They are omnivores - they eat other small insects, fruit, aphids.

They are found worldwide (except cold places like Arctic, Antarctica).
